SPRING fever with its deadly shaft,
Strikes weak as well as strong,
And makes the poor afflicted souls
Do nothing all day long.
And some who have it awful bad,
We very greatly fear,
Are made so tired that they will
Do nothing all the year.

Garbrant, at Springfield, O., last Wednesday, created a decided sensation among the sporting fraternity, when announced, for the first time, this morning. Mark is the well known proprietor of the "Turf Exchange," and his bride a handsome game widow, who has played snail with more than one admirer. She is originally from Newark, N. J., while he is from Mayville, Ky. Both, however, have lived in this city several years and have become well known. It was reported at Springfield that they were a runaway couple to escape the interference of the bride's parents—an excellent joke.

New Enterprise.

We are pleased to announce the inauguration of a new and important enterprise in this city by Messrs. Thomas and George Keith. They propose, in connection with Mr. Sibley, of Manchester, O., an experienced potter, to begin at an early day the manufacture of earthenware, from the excellent clay so abundant in this vicinity. It is an enterprise that will start with very encouraging prospects and with the good wishes of the entire community. The establishment, we learn, will be located probably in Chester.

Our good old town is trying hard to put you on your feet, so here's a hint to you by your work. Make sweet the bread you eat; And be in luck to water what may be the store of gold. That will not go out of him Who fails to help himself.

Of course one should go in to win, And do the best he can. To prove to all the chance to meet He's every inch a man. But where's the use of striving hard When luck's against you? Why not "throw up the sponge" at once, And live upon your dard.
